Re: Your letter of January 28, 1984

Dear Mr. Webb:

I see no purpose in engaging in an argument by correspondence on a factual issue about which you are un-informed. If you wish to maintain a position that is premised on a misstatement of fact, that is your business.

I regret the bitter and angry tone of your recent letter and its personal attack on me. If you choose to write to me again, perhaps you would consider dividing your letter into two parts. The first part could contain vindictive rhetoric, baseless allegations, innuendo, invective and other forms of personal attack. The second part could contain any substantive points that you wish to make.

Very truly yours,

Terrence O'Donnell
